From our Special Correspondent BOSTON, May 25, 1863. Three or four years ago an old gray-haired man was arrested in this section for personating a young lady and obtaining money under false pretences, but his operations had not extended over a very long period, and his victims, who were few in number, were mostly residents of Boston and vicinity. To-day an Englishmen about 55 years of age was arrested for the same offense, and it may be that he is the identical individual who figured in the first transaction alluded to. If it be he, his efforts the second time have been more ne, his efforts the second time have been more successful than was his first venture, and this time he has awindled a number of prominent gentlemen in different elities all over the United States. His manner of proceeding was to write to a member of Congress, a business man, a Government official, or any individual whose position caused the publication of his name in a New-England directory, a political almane, or a minual, a series of the publication of his name in a New-England directory, a political almane, or a minual, a series of the publication of his name in a New-England directory, a political almane, or a minual, a series of the publication of his name in a New-England directory, a political almane, or a minual, a series of the publication of the parants, now deceased; that she had formerly acquainted with her parents, now deceased; that she was destine, was small sum of the problems. She further said that she would disclose her real name but for feelings of shame, which a her happiness. Different statements were made to different individuals, and many were received from parties residing in New-York City, Albany, Elizabethtown (Essex Co.), Loversville, and Phelps, N. Y.; Philadelphia, Williamsport, west Chester, Greensburg, and Midhiburg (Union Co.), Fenn.; Washington, D. C.; Owensboro, K. Y.; Lexington, Ya.; Wilmington, N. I went to town and inquired for you, but you had not arrived. I look forward to our meeting joyoutsy! I am as glad I was the means of helping you, clearest, and that I have relieved you of the embarrasement alluded to. Oh! it must be awful the be among those who are not congenial to one's self, and I think you do have a kind, loving heart, and you seem to have no one to love you or to care for. May I kope I hay supply that void in your bessen, and he your idol. Oh! I feel that I could ly to you were it possible; my whole being goes toward you in sympathy and love. Oh! It seems that Eva's real name is Wim. R. Emerson. He is, as intimated above, an oldish gentleman, wears glasses, says he is an Englishmau, and a large bullet-shaped head supported by a neck one inch long and about twenty-five inches in circumference, a massive pair of shoulders, and a short, chunky body indicate that he has fold the truth about his nationality if he never did on any other subject in his life. "Lee" would have enjoyed meeting this coarse-grained specimen of humanity at the American Hotel in Philadelphia, but "oh!" how his expectations would have been dashed. Emerson has transacted business with parties in New-York under his right name, as is shown by papers in his possession. He has been stopping in various towns in this section, and had his letters sent from one Post-Office to another, so frequently that the Postmasters suspected him, and wrote to the authorities at Washington, who notified Major Jones, the State Constable, and this gentleman immediately caused his arrest. Emerson says he came to this country from England 30 years ago, and settled in Maryland, where he remained until the commencement of the war. Not caring to side with either the Unionists or the Rebels, he returned to England. At the close of the war he again favored this country with his presence, and for the last few months he has been obtaining a livelihood in the easy but verified in the major states that he shall be obliged to discharge him from custody, though he will retain his interesting correspondence. His dupes, however, will probably take warning from their experience, and the hundreds of thousands who read The Tribuke will be placed on their guard against the wiles of such unprincipled adventurers. It seems that Eva's real name is Wm. R. Emerson. He

THE GREAT ERIE WAR.

A NEW CONTEMPT CASE-DANIEL DREW TO BE EXAMINED.

In the case of The People and others agt. James Fisk, jr., and others, there was another movement yesterday in the Supreme Court, Chambers, before Judge Barnard. The contempt proceedings were on the calendar, in order to obtain the testimony of Mr. Daniel Drew, who had been subpensed to attend. He failed to appear, and an attachment was issued against him, bailable and returnable yesterday. Mr. A. F. Smith appeared on his behalf, and said that he had seen Mr. Drew on the previous day, who said he could not attend, unless absolutely necessary, owing to his having to go to a funeral as a pall-bearer. In reply Mr. Smith had told him that, as the Court had decided to take no further oral testimony, it was not necessary. If the other side desired to have Mr. Drew's affidavit, and would set forth the points on which they desired it, he would have one drawn and sent to them.

Mr. Horace F. Clark, the plaintiff's counsel, said he was unwilling to enter into any such arrangoment, as it would be utterly nugatory. It was plain that Mr. Drew desired to avoid giving his testimeny. Mr Clark asked that therefore the Court should forfeit his bond and issue an attachment not bailable against him to compel his attendance. The Court was unwilling to proceed to extremities, and directed Mr. Drew to appear before a referee, and his counsel agreed that he should. The matter was then adjourned. Barnard. The contempt proceedings were on the calenter was then adjourned.

In the trial-term of the Superior Court, yesterday, Helena Kaiterbach brought suit against John Meyer, for damages for severe injuries alleged to have been inflicted by his cow. The defense was that the cow did not belong to the defendant at all. The jury gave the plaintiff a verdet for $700.

In the United States Circuit Court, Southern District, the case of Anron C. Emmons against Henry S. Macomb, was commenced yesterday. This was a suit by plaintiff, who is a tanner, to recover $3,76138 with interest, from defendant, which amount he alleges defendant owes him for a lot of deer and carpinche (South American water hog) skins. Before much progress had been made the case was adjourned until this morning.

I. J. United States Chruit Court, Southern District, before Judge Nelson, the suit of Richardson agt. Montgomery was disposed of yesterday. The plaintiff in this case is of the firm of Richardson, Estell & Co. of Idverpool, England, who, it was shown, had had transactions with Montgomery, who had shipped to them from this port certain goods to be sold on commission, on which they made advances, by which $7,30444 had been left due by Montgomery. This amount was sued for by the plaintiff, and no defense being made, a verdict was given for the amount.

The case of John Graham agt. Gregorio Do-The case of John Graham agt. Gregorio Do-mingnez came up yesterday in the United States Circuit Court, Southern District, before Judge Nelson. The de-fendant in this suit, who is the Consul for Ecuador at this port, was arrested, on a capias in this suit, in which he is charged with fraudulent representations, and im-prisoned in default of $150,000 ball. Subsequently, after argument by opposing counsel, the ball was greatly reduced, but the defendant being unable to obtain it is still in the custody of the Marshai. His counsel was anxious to re-argue the case before Judge Nelson, in the hope of obtaining the defendant's release from custody, but the Judge, finding that argument and reading of papers would take several days, suggested that all the papers, including a transcript of the proceedings in the argument before Judge Blatchford, should be given to him to examine and decide upon: the convenience counsel acreed examine and decide upon: the opposing counsel agreed to this, and the Court will probably decide the matter at an early day.

In the Supreme Court Chambers yesterday before Judge Barnard, a long contested assessment entitled The People ex rel Geery agt. R. B. Connolly came up on a motion to compel the Controller to vacate an assessment for the laying of a sewer in Third-ave. In 1821. In 1863, Judge Barnard made an order vacating the assessment for fraud. The testimony then before him was the petition and an affidavit in reply with a report of the referee to whom he had referred certain facts for inquiry. In a subsequent proceeding on this assessment the General Term decided that the whole of these proceedings must go on before the Judge who initiated them, and could not be referred. On this decision, Mr. O'Gorman contended that the original order vacating the assessment was void, and no basis for the present motion. The Court held that though the proceedings could not be referred, the Court was at liberty to obtain any information through a referee. But, aside from that, if the verified petition was not answered were sufficient to sustain it, this was sufficient ground for granting the petition without further proofs. The motion was granted. Government bonds opened strong and active, both for investment and speculative account. After the 12 o'clock call there was considerable desire shown to realize by parties who had bought at lower figures, and a decline of ; and ; per cent was made on the active bonds; 10-40s sold at 105, and the 5-20s of 1865 and 1867 at 111$. At the decline the market was fully sustained, and at the close there was an active de mand for all the bonds; 10-40s sold for 1054. The 5-30s of 1867 were specially active, and sold in large lots at 112, the highest point of the day. The market closed strong and active at quotations. The conversions of Railway bonds were offered in small amounts at full prices. The sales of the Central Pacific bonds are heavy and in excess of the needs of the Company. The price is continued at par and accrued interest, but the Company reserve the right to advance the rate at any time, and will do so, should the demand continue at the present

The Railway share market opened buoyant or New-York Central, which sold at 1342, and Erie, which sold at 732. The balance of the market was also strong at full prices. At the Board, on large sales to realize profits, the market reacted on the entire list. New-York Central sold at 1331; Erie, 711; Reading, 95; North-Western Preferred, 791. The decline was from I to 14, being heaviest on Eric and North-Western Preferred, which were freely hammered by the bears, in hopes of forcing a further decline in the market, but all the stocks offered were taken, and at the close prices were firm for Western shares, which were in demand. Erie and New-York Central continued to be hammered, closing steady at quotations.

And the following for Railroad bonds:

days at 4 per cent. Commercial paper of short date and prime quality is scarce, and passes at low rates. Long bills are not in favor. The payment of the July interest on the National debt will set free a large amount of capital now dormant. Unlike the earnings of banks, railroads, and other enterprises, the earnings of the National debt are not loaned and used in commercial channels, but are hoarded from one dividend day to another, the Treasury carrying in this way more than one hundred millions on the average of gold and currency, which is lost for commercial purposes. Up to the present time the United States has been manufacturing bonds which in a good degree absorbed at each recurring dividend the income of the National debt. This state of things draws to a close, and whoever wishes to invest in United States stocks must do so from a steadily decreasing amount of those securities. The 7.30s will soon be funded, and put as completely out of the way as the other short debt payable in currency, has been. The revenue of the Government is now more than sufficient to pay the interest of the debt, and ordinary expenses, and without using the now idle balance of $100,000,000 the Department can steadily reduce the debt by purchases in open market. There is no good reason why the Government should not at an early day reduce its balance to $60,000,000, and use the surplus in buying up its bonds. The present plan of keeping an excessive balance is wasteful and unwise, and before Congress adjourns it should instruct the Secretary to reduce it. Sterling Exchange is dull and weaker. By consent of parties, a preliminary injunction has been granted by Judge Swayne, of the United States Circuit Court of Ohio, in the case of D. J. Fallis agt, Miles Greenwood, restraining the latter, as treasurer of Hamilton County, from collecting taxes on stock of national banks owned by the plaintiff. The trial of the case, for the purpose of making the injunction perpetual, is postponed until the Fall term. As some of the Tracy party, in one of the morning papers-for the purpose, doubtless, of covering up the real subject of controversy between themselves and the stockholders-have put forth statements that the stockholders are opposed to the extension of the road to the Missouri River, to connect with the Union Pacific road, it may be as well to show that such statements are not well founded. If it be important to know where the opposition to the extension of the road lay, and who were or were not opposed to such extension, it is equally important that the truth should be stated. One of the charges made by the stockholders in the recent litigation with Tracy and his associates was that the increase of capital had been made to promote certain stockjobbing operations in which it was charged that Tracy and others were it was charged that Tracy and others were interested, and that it was not made for the purpose of making the extension of the road, To prove of making the extension of the road, To prove of the road of the road this there were read the affidavits of various persons, which certainly went far to show that Tracy was the one who was opposed to the extension, and that he was actually negotiating with the North-Western Railroad Company to prevent the Rock Island Company from making the extension. It was an important point, as bearing on the good faith of Tracy, in issuing the new stock (out of which he realized some $40,000) for the stockholders to show that the pretence that it was issued to build the extension was false, and they could not do this more satisfactorily than by showing that Tracy, who was the head and front of the whole scheme, was opposed to the extension, and was negotiating for the control of the North-Western Company's Road for the very purpose of preventing the extension. The following extract, from affidavits read on the trial alluded to. will remove all doubt on these points:

will remove all doubt on these points:

Southern District of New-York, Gity and County of New-York, ss.:—Frederick P. James and Russell Sage, being sworn, says, and each for himself says, that he is acquainted with John F. Tracy, the President of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company; that about the 1st day of November, 1887, the said Tracy stated in the presence of deponent that it was not the intention of the said Company to extend or build the road from Des Moines west to Omaha, to connect with the Union Pacific; that there was not and would not be for many years, if there ever was, business enough for more than one road eastward from Omaha, and that it would not pay, and would not be judicious for the said Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Company to build or extend their road from Des Moines west to Omaha.

F. P. James,

Southern District of New-York, City and County of New-York, ss.: Benjamin Nathan, being sworn, says, that in an interview with John F. Tracy, the President of the above Company, which took place in the Fall of the year 1887, after the return of the said Tracy from the West, after the coping of the road to Des Moines, the said Tracy said that the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company intended to stop at Des Moines.

That the road of the Chicago and North-Western Railroad Company extended from Chicago to Omaha, and there connects with the Union and Pacific, and said Tracy asserted that there was not business enough to justify the extension of the Rock Island Road to the Missouri River, and that they did not intend to make it.

stockholders read further affidavits of Mr. James and Mr. Sage.

City and County of New-York, ss.: Frederick P. James, being duly sworn, says, that he has heard read what purports to be an affidavit of John F. Tracy made herein on the 15th of February, 1868. That it is not true, as stated in said affidavit, that deponent and Russell Sage made the proposal to said Trucy, "but that, on the contrary, the proposition in regard to such subjects came from and were made by said Tracy, and the said Tracy himself proposed to this deponent and said Sage, that they should join him in getting the control of said North-Western Road. "That the object of said Tracy, as he stated, was to get control of the North-Western Company, so that an arrangement could be made between the North-Western and the Rock Island, by which the road of the latter need not be extended. "That the said Tracy also stated that his object in wishing to get control of said North-Western Road was to unite the said consolidated road with the said North-Western, at a point west of Des Moines, where said two roads came within about seven miles of each other, and thence to run the two roads on the single track of the North-Western Road to the Missouri River, and that the road of the Rock Island Company should not extend beyond the point before alluded to, which was twenty-five miles west of Des Moines.

City and County of New-York, sr.: Russell Sage, being sworn, says that it is not true that deponent and James made the proposal to said Tracy, that the said Company's road should stop at Des Moines; "but he says that the proposition was made by and came from said Tracy, and was not made to him; and he says "the said Tracy said that the Rock Island did not want to build its road to the Missouri River; and one of the objects he (Tracy) had in desiring to secure the control of the North-Western Road was to enable him to make an arrangement between the North-Western and the Rock Island Goad by which the two roads might be united and the two roads run on the single forth by Tracy and his associates in regard to the extension and the proposed arrangement with the North-West may now readily be seen. Mr. Tracy and his friends (if he has any) must find some more sound and better-founded reasons than any yet presented for resisting the stockholders in their attempt to secure the exercise of a right the importance and value of which, to them, is more apparent from what
